5th Birthday AND BEYOND

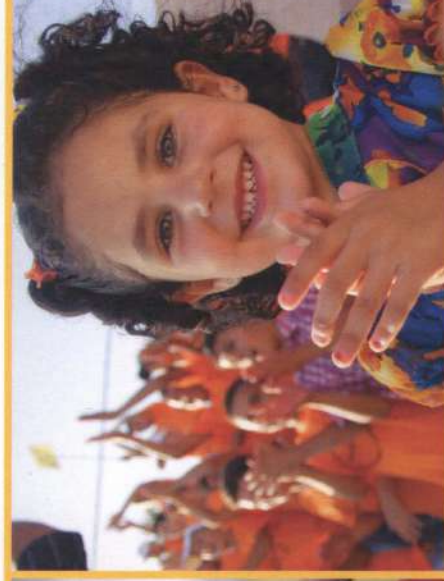

Over the past 25 years, the United States has played a leading role in one of the world's most remarkable success stories: unprecedented progress to prevent the deaths of millions of children. Thank you, America!

The results are unprecedented. The world has made remarkable progress to prevent the deaths of millions of children under the age of five. This year, six million fewer children will die before their fifth birthday than did just 25 years ago. In just 12 short years, annual deaths from preventable diseases have fallen remarkably:

- Pneumonia: 700,000 fewer children died
- Diarrhea: 600,000 fewer children died
- Measles: 400,000 fewer children died
- Malaria: 300,000 fewer children died
- AIDS: 100,000 fewer children died

* UNICEF estimates, updated in May, 2014, comparing deaths in 2012, the most recent year available, to deaths in 2000

Unprecedented Results in Global Health

It's not just fewer deaths but also fewer sicknesses. Today, ten million people are walking, spared the crippling effects of polio thanks to the global polio eradication program.

No country has done more than the United States to help the world's poorest children celebrate their fifth birthday and thrive beyond it.

- With the support of the American people and strong bipartisan leadership, U.S. foreign assistance programs have helped cut in half the annual number of deaths of children under five since 1990.
- These results would not have happened without the historic collaboration between the world's governments, multilateral institutions and local players.
- Diverse allies such as NGOs, civic groups, faith and business communities, universities and foundations have leveraged billions more private dollars for overseas programs.

* WHO Fact Sheet, updated in May, 2014 (<http://www.who.int/mediacentre/factsheets/fs114/en/>)

But the needs remain. Despite these significant results, 6.6 million children under five will not reach their birthdays this year, dying mainly from preventable diseases.

- U.S. foreign assistance has played a key role in ensuring millions of children have a fifth birthday, but 18,000 children a day still don't reach that milestone.
- Forty-four percent of those deaths occur during the newborn period.

25 Years of Progress for Children

Now is the time to re-commit our investments in life-saving programs and to increase support for effective interventions that allow children to survive and thrive.

COMMITMENTS TO CHILD HEALTH

Members of the 5th Birthday and Beyond coalition have made financial or programmatic commitments to child survival and child health to ensure that every child survives and thrives beyond their fifth birthday.

These commitments represent the broad diversity of partners from across the NGO, corporate, faith, civil society, academic and philanthropic communities, who have come together to deliver results for the world's children.

To view the breadth of the commitments made by the coalition members, visit the Global Health Council's website, www.globalhealth.org.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The 5th Birthday and Beyond coalition wishes to extend its appreciation and gratitude to the following individuals and organizations who helped to make the Capitol Hill event possible: CARE, InterAction, Global Health Council, UNICEF, World Help and World Vision.
